Washington Hotel

And the Block on Broadway between Chambers and Reade Streets.

IN this building The Saint Nicholas Society of the City of New York was organized on February 14th, 1835.

As Washington Hall it was built in 1809 by the "Washington Benevolent Society," organized on July 4th, 1808, to support Federal Views in opposition to the "Tammany Society or Columbian Order," which maintained Democratic-Republican principles. The corner-stone was laid July 4th, 1809, and the Society held its first meeting in the Great Hall on July 4th, 1811, the upper part of the building being unfinished at that time. This was opened as a hotel on June 12th, 1813. The interior was entirely destroyed by fire on July 4th, 1844, and in April, 1845, the walls were removed to make way for the A. T. Stewart store.

This being the Seventy-fifth Anniversary Year of the Society, it was thought fitting to insert in this volume views of New York contemporary with the Society's foundation. The twelve views are photographs from the original pen-and-ink sketches by Charles Burton now in the possession of The New York Historical Society and were drawn about the year 1835. The views represent the times just before the great fire of 1835 and the financial crashes of 1837, and which marked the culmination of the golden age of early modern New York. During the early forties the march of external improvements began the destruction of the most interesting of our City's old landmarks. To-day very few of these remain, and of those that are gone scarce even a lively memory is present. For this reason, and in that they represent the City known to our ancestors, the founders of this Society, they should be of special interest to our members. It is worthy of note that the views are the first and only reproductions from the originals.

The courtesy of The New York Historical Society is hereby acknowledged.

Grace and Trinity Churches

THE corner-stone of Grace Church, at the southwest corner of Broadway and Rector Street, was laid March 18th, 1806. The structure was removed when the congregation built their new church at Broadway and Tenth Street in 1846.

The view of Trinity Church represents the second edifice erected in 1788, the first edifice having been destroyed by the great fire of September, 1776.

In 1839, upon commencing some repairs to the church, it was found necessary to rebuild. The present church was opened for worship May 21st, 1846.

Trade and Mining Companies

The Commercial Union of South Africa was established in 1892, and its object was to promote the interests of the various trading and mining companies in the Union. It was the first of its kind in the world, and its success has been a model for other similar organizations. The Union has since been joined by many other companies, and its influence has grown steadily. It has been instrumental in the development of the Union's trade and mining industries, and its members have been able to secure the best prices for their goods and services. The Union has also been successful in securing the best terms for the purchase of foreign goods, and its members have been able to secure the best prices for their goods and services. He shall keep a roll of the members. He shall give notice through the post office or letter-delivery companies of all meetings, whether stated or special. SECTION 13. The Board of Officers shall meet regularly on the Monday preceding each Stated Meeting. Special meetings may be called by the Secretary, under the direction of the President, or of the Vice-President acting in his stead, or of any three members of the Board of Officers. In addition to the duties conferred upon the Board by this Constitution, they shall likewise execute all such business as may from time to time be committed to them by any law or resolve of the Society; and they shall report their proceedings at every Stated Meeting of the Society. The presence of at least seven members shall be necessary for the transaction of business. ## Park Theatre and Part of Park Row

THE Park Theatre was erected originally in 1798 by a number of New York gentlemen. The interior was consumed by fire on May 24th, 1820, but was restored as represented in the view, and reopened in September, 1821. On the night of December 16th, 1848, just prior to the opening of the doors, fire consumed the building, and it was never rebuilt. The building was 80 feet upon the street, 55 in height and 165 feet in depth, and was able to accommodate 2,500 persons. Upon an alley adjoining the rear of the theatre was a wing containing the green room, the dressing rooms and stage entrance from which it received its name, Theatre Alley. This street, running between Ann and Beekman Streets, still retains the name of Theatre Alley, and is now the only remembrance that remains of the most celebrated early American theatre.

Masonic Hall

MASONIC HALL occupied the site now known as 314 and 316 Broadway. The corner-stone was laid on St. John's Day, June 24th, 1826. The building was completed the following year at a cost of $50,000. The front elevation was of pure Gothic style, and was built of the much-admired eastern gray granite. Later its name was changed to Gothic Hall, and the building was demolished in the sixties.

Bowery Theatre

THE Bowery Theatre opened October 23d, 1826, was erected on the site of the old tavern and cattle market known as "Bull's Head." The original building was destroyed by fire May 26th, 1828; the second edifice, as shown in the view, was erected and ready for opening in less than ninety days. Subsequently it was many times partially destroyed by fire, but being restored, it is now one of the few land marks of this period that remains.
